EAGE is recognizing the opportunities presented by the energy transition, particularly in the areas of geothermal energy, geochemistry and sustainability. The Association is committed to supporting members by providing a platform for industry and academia to meet and share insights and knowledge that link across multiple geoscientific disciplines. In November EAGE will offer together with IGA, and DGMK, a joint Workshop on Deep Geothermal Energy.

Keep an eye on the event website via events.eage.org for more details on this workshop!

Engage with our network around the globe! With five regional offices, EAGE operates worldwide by organizing and attending relevant events for those affiliated to the geothermal field and interested in connecting with a multidisciplinary community. Here is what's planned for 2018!
